

MORNING APPEAL

THURSDAY OCTOBER 16

A GREAT SESSION.

People have short memories. Therefore in making the statement that the first session of the Fifty-first Congress, just adjourned, has accomplished more than any single session of congress ever did, we append a partial list of the new laws passed by it, including only such as are of tariff bill, the most carefully prepared and complete measure of the kind ever enacted into a law; next comes the silver law which has had so much to do with starting the tide of prosperity now steadily rising all over the country. The custom administrative bill carried a great evil in the classification of imported goods; the dependent and disability pension law renders partial justice to veteran Union soldiers; the anti-trust bill shows that the Republicans have no sympathy with the robber combinations formed by monopolists to rob the consumers. The bill for a grand World's Fair at Chicago to celebrate the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America meets the approval of all good citizens; the admission of Wyoming and Idaho as States fulfills the promises of the Republican national platform to admit the territories as fast as they become qualified for statehood; the meat inspection law will restore the prestige which American meats once had in foreign countries; the railroads land grant forfeiture law restores to the public domain and opens to homestead settlement millions of acres of desolate land; the original packages av means another step forward in moral reform; the building of three fine battle ships, one protected cruiser, and two torpedo boats, provided for, gives the Government additional power to protect American interests, and the liberal appropriations made for the Portage Lake and Hennepin canal in the northwest, and for the deep water Harbor at Galveston, in the Southwest, show the Republican party to be thoroughly alive to the commercial needs of sections of the country. This record is especially commended to young men about to cast their first; if the Republican party had no other record than the one it has made in Congress since last December that alone should be sufficient to keep them in control of the Government for twenty years to come.

O. H. GRAY.

The nominee for Secretary of State is making a very effective canvass and his election is conceded. Mr. Gray has served both the party and the people of this State in a most acceptable manner for years and has brought to bear faithfulness and ability in everything he ever undertook.

The Democrats are having a most lively row in Story. At a recent convention they kicked Hon. W. E. F. Deal out of the gathering on the ground that he had a proxy. His only crime has been the political one of insisting on wearing a clean shirt at Democratic conventions and it is also alleged that he changes it as often as three times a week and even more.

Bob Keating vows that there shall be no corporation influences in the Democratic ticket. Mr. Keating has probably become steeped with anti-corporation prejudice by his long affiliation with the Hale and Norcross mining company.

It is currently reported that McKinley has snubbed Blaine in a most emphatic manner, and that the Secretary will not canvass Ohio in the interest of the author of the new tariff bill, as first reported.

The Democrats have placed a legislative ticket in the field which looks to a man up a tree as if there was a nigger in the fence somewhere.

Homestake made a heat in Napa on Tuesday in 2:14 3:4. Homestake is a Gibraltar colt and John Sweeny sets up the beer.
